Never rely on water caches!!! With the increase in the number of hikers, it's virtually impossible for anyone to maintain a cache that always has enough water (for more info visit <http://www.pcta.org/2015/problem-water-caches-pct-27677/>). Also, to reduce the impact at popular camping sites that offer natural water sources please consider dry camping (for more info visit <http://www.pcta.org/2015/dry-camping-away-from-water-30263/>).

Send email updates to water@pctwater.com or phone/text 619-734-7289 or 619-734-PCTW [voice mail/text only, no one will answer]. Water reports are compiled from email updates, posts to the PCT-L, on-line trail journals, and other on-the-ground reports. Mileages and waypoint names used in this water report are from Halfmile's PCT maps [www.pctmap.net].

Beware of contaminated water. Things that could make you sick are too small to see. You don't know if a dead carcass was just removed from that tank/spring/creek or what's hidden upstream. Purify backcountry water. Close lids on springs and tanks to protect water quality.

Take fire safety seriously. It's an unprecedented drought and our public lands are ready to burn. Generally, there will be strong fire restrictions in place this summer. Campfires will be banned. Alcohol stoves and smoking may also be. Make do without and use extreme caution if allowed. Rules change as you cross agency boundaries. Don't be the one that destroys the trail. Alcohol stoves start fires – go stoveless or carry a stove with a contained fuel source and a shut-off valve.

Water sources with blue text [marked with * or ] have historically been more reliable. Sources marked with  are more likely to have water year-round than those marked with a single *. Water described as seasonal, usually dry, early spring, etc. are less reliable.

M5	1195.4	Church1195	Church, 1.4 miles southwest of PCT in Sierra City, water, hikers allowed to camp on lawn, public restroom nearby.

M5	1200.7	WA1201	Seasonal spring	Dry	9/14/15	Notsofast
M1	1202.6	WA1203	Sierra Buttes Spring	There is one shallow pool (2 inches deep) just below the trail with cold clear water that is being replenished well enough to fill several 1 liter bottles in as many minutes. Water is good but bring a scoop to collect. The pools 100 yards downstream on the spur trail were not any better.	9/14/15	Notsofast
M2	1209.2	RD1209	Unpaved road to Summit Lake, water at Summit Lake.	damaged by off road vehicle, lake is more like a pond lots of algae had to strain through bandana first then filter very time consuming, water warm also	6/23/15	Canadoug
M3	1211.9	WA1212	Pauley Seep, 100 yards off trail.	Faint access trail to several small pools with decent water. ----- Note that the sign is facing southbound traffic so watch for a faint use trail to avoid missing it.	9/6/15	Chopstake
M3	1213.5	WA1214B	Trail junction to Little Jamison Creek, 200 feet off-trail.	Only Little Jamison Spring is flowing, the Little Jamison Creek (~200ft east of the PCT at the low spot in the trail) and pond are dry.	9/15/15	Notsofast
M3	1213.5	WA1214	Piped spring 1/10 mile E of PCT	Flowing at 1L/min but not out of pipe, so bring a scoop to collect out of small pool. Right after the Little Jamison Creek "low spot" in the trail, the side trail forks and there is another sign that pointed uphill and to the right that said "spring" in 600ft. I took this trail uphill (and to the north/left side of the drainage). It eventually curved back around to the bottom of the drainage and at that spot there was a sign on a tree that said "Little Jamison Spring" and there was a spring flowing with a small pool. That is what I'm reporting as the spring in my water report. The water from that seemed to go underground soon afterward sometime downhill, because when you looked downhill a ways there was no obvious water flowing. Also, there was no flow at the official creek crossing on the side trail even farther downhill either, so that water must be getting reabsorbed in the ground I guess.	9/15/15	Notsofast
M3	1213.6	WACS1214	Small pond	Only Little Jamison Spring is flowing, the Little Jamison Creek (~200ft east of the PCT at the low spot in the trail) and pond are dry.	9/15/15	Notsofast

For alternate water follow the dirt road down another 2/10th of a mile to the second intersection. Follow the road to the left for 50 feet to find a slow moving trickle to stagnate pools. Do not recommend.	7/19/15	Burgundy
M6	1242	WA1242	Small N Fowler Creek, 1/10 mile S of PCT down short trail.	Several liters per minute. Deep pool just downstream for collection.	7/8/15	Cloud Rider

Sign for the creek is mounted parallel to the trail so be careful not to miss it. The use trail is visible, and takes you down across a road to a shady watering hole. As a south-bounder coming up from the Middle Fork on a hot day, this oasis was a welcome relief.

It's a bit of a climb back up (~300 ft) but worth it and I would fill up here as the next water source at mile 1315.5 (Carter Creek) gave a lot of other hikers problems in 2014 in terms of finding it which meant no water between Little Cub Springs and Hwy 36 which is 19 miles away.	6/15/16	Silver
N5	1315.5	WACS1316	Seasonal Carter Creek, 1/2 mile N of PCT	water flowing at 5 liters per minute ----- Many hikers in 2014 could not find any water which is 0.5 mile off the PCT. A few hikers did find water however.	6/1/16	Fat Sectioner

6/1/16 (Fat Sectioner) : Currently, the WACS1316 is at the point where the trail crosses Carter creek, 350 feet or so past the campsites. If one follows the path past t

- * 0.0 miles: Leave PCT
- * 0.4 miles: Campsite
- * 0.45 miles: Carter Creek Crossing
- * 0.5 miles: Unnamed Creek Crossing
- * 0.6 miles: Confluence of two creeks 100 feet to the west of the trail
- * 0.7 miles: Permanent (aka more than seasonal) creek about 50 feet to the west of the trail

 To that end, at the Carter Meadows trail intersection on the PCT there's a sign that says "permanent water 0.7 mi". And based on what I've seen, that makes However, the campsites are similar enough distance, one could easily assume that was the 0.7 miles (particularly with how off mileage can be on trail markers) a explore further down-stream. So what I'd recommend is adding waypoint WA1316 at location 40.2027,-121.4178 (that's the 0.6 mile item on the mileage log) with description: "Permanent water on Carter Creek, further downstream of campsite." If you'd prefer something even more substantial, you could use location 40.2042,-121.4166 that is 0.7miles downstream. At that point the flow is so strong the creek can be seen from Google Earth imagery and the USGS topo maps s another creek having joined in (although I didn't see it).

N15	1383	TR1383	Trail to Lost Creek Spring ----- We are especially interested in water reports about this location. Please send info	Flowing great! ----- 5/9/16 (Paige & Barbara) : Good flow. Agree with Red Hawks description of Lost Creek Spring trail, doable although two spots that need to be scrambled. After seeing trail wished I hadn't lugged all that water up from Subway. Although I would want my hands free for scramble (bring a backpack down to carry water up) water flowing well, could hear from trail 300 feet up. ----- 9/12/15 (Redhawk) : Many gallons. The climb down is not as bad as it looks. Only 2 slickery/trickery spots. There is definitely gnarlier trail on PCT itself. For me 10 min. down, 12 min up with 4 litres in hands.	6/9/16	Shybear
Per Pounder on 6/11/15 : The creek below the spring is the water supply for a municipal district. It is a steep trail to travel to the spring, and horses are ill-advised. Even if you could safely get a horse to the bottom, they can't access the water without a bucket.

Use filter & it's okay. Walk past fish rearing areas down to Administrative Office. On rear is hose bib with plenty of flow; bathrooms by fish pens are nearly unusable. ----- 5/9/16 (Paige & Barbara) : Still has a broken handle in men's bathroom, woman's is good. Hard to recognize where bathroom is from road, walk through gate/cattle guard and it is first building on rt. ----- 6/22/15 (Plan B & Whatever) : No water in Men's room. Handle broken. Q7	1640	WA1640	Grider Creek, 1st crossing, wooden footbridge (bridge was completely burnt in Nov 2014).	Flowing well. The first NoBo crossing had a reroute crossing further south on Grider creek. It looks well established. Coming southbound it's a little less clear as the old trail down to the bridge foundations hasn't been marked as closed - the distinct lack of bridge is a good tip off though. ----- 7/26/15 (Cloud Rider) : Large creek. Many gallons/min of clear water. Detour is signed (for NOBO) and follows a well trodden path where you can cross both creeks on rocks and logs. For SOBO follow the more well trodden path up and to the left where the trail splits. ----- Per BeeKeeper on 6/2/15 : There is now a detour in place for first crossing. I didn't grab the mileage marker but just before 1640. There are two crossings within a few minutes of each other requiring a ford of less than shin to knee high. The detour rejoins the PCT at 1640.03.	6/7/16	Shybear
Q7	1,641.2	WA1641	Grider Creek, 2nd crossing, wooden footbridge (bridge was burnt & broken in half but passable on foot, Nov. 2014).	Flowing well. The second nobo crossing bridge is washed out but no visible alternate. It's only about knee deep there and not too fast. ----- 7/26/15 (Cloud Rider) : Large creek. Many gallons/min of clear water. Bridge washed to one side of the creek and useless. But, you can cross on logs. ----- Per BeeKeeper on 6/2/15 : The bridge is no longer usable at second crossing. It broke apart and one half is on the south shore. The other is MIA. There is a log just upstream. I crossed using it. Gaining access to the river to ford is challenging but doable.	6/7/16	Shybear
Per BeeKeeper on 6/2/15 : There are 3 places that are very badly eroded in steep slide areas and not horse safe : mile points 1642.68, 1643.39 and 1643.76.
